FORT HAYS STATE

Tonight's Game

Both teams have plenty of incentive for a win tonight as Fort Hays State hosts Eastern New Mexico University for only the second time. The Tigers will be out to pull a surprise on a nationally ranked team for the second week in a row, while the Greyhounds will be trying to protect their 4-0 record and a national standing.

Eastern was ranked sixth by the NAIA last week, and the Greyhounds are having thoughts of a national championship. They will have to get by a fired-up team tonight as the Tigers are coming off a spectacular upset of 16th-ranked Missouri Southern. FHS came from a 21-0 halftime deficit Saturday to score 32 points and hand the Lions a 32-24 loss.

Later in the day Eastern won its fourth straight game, but had more difficulty than expected. The Greyhounds had to come from behind to subdue Southern Colorado 28-16. Their earlier triumphs were 52-6 over Panhandle State, 21-3 over Western New Mexico and 38-6 over Sul Ross.

FHS broke into the win column at Missouri Southern after a narrow 21-20 loss to Northwestern Oklahoma and a 10-7 loss to Kearney State. If the Tigers can win tonight's game, it will be their first win over Eastern in the short series. The Greyhounds won 25-0 at Portales in 1960 and the teams played to a 19-19 tie at Hays in 1961. However, the Tigers forfeited the game for using an ineligible player. Eastern pulled out a 14-7 win at Portales last season when the schools resumed their series.

The Greyhounds have collected most of their yards with their awesome ground attack this season. They are averaging 338.5

Jack Scott

yards rushing per game and adding 139.2 yards through the air for 477.7 yards in total offense per game. FHS is averaging 220.3 yards on the ground and 110 yards passing for a total of 330.3 each game.

Eastern's top offensive threat is running back Tom Manley, who has carried the ball 59 times for 516 yards, an 8.7-yard average per carry and a 129-yard average per game. He is backed up by Steve Olson, who has rushed 61 times for 380 yards, a 6.2-yard average per carry and a 95-yard average per game. The fullback is Russell Tatum, and he also owns impressive statistics. He has rushed 21 times for 266 yards, a 12.7-yard average per carry and a 66.5-yard average per game.

The Tigers will counter with freshman tailback Tom Doll, who has been sensational in his first three college games. Doll has carried the ball 70 times for 406 yards, a 5.8-yard average per carry and a 135.3-yard average per game. Quarterback Greg Custer has completed 30 of 66 passes for 330 yards, but he has given up 13 interceptions. Custer's main target has been split end Ron Hawley, who has grabbed 11 passes for 121 yards, an 11-yard average per catch.

Eastern's passing game rides on the arm of quarterback Bill Birkhead, and he has hit on 25 of 48 passes for 441 yards and has suffered only two interceptions. His favorite receiver is flanker Calvin Phillips, who has pulled down 12 aerials for 247 yards, a 20.6-yard average per reception.

What looks like an overwhelming offensive show may turn into a defensive struggle.

A Look Ahead

Fort Hays State opens its Great Plains Athletic Conference schedule next Saturday, and the Tigers start off against league favorite Northern Colorado at Greeley. Kickoff time is 2:30 p.m. Hays time at Jackson Field.

Northern Colorado is off to a 2-0 start this season with a 21-10 win over Western State and 37-6 win over Colorado Mines. The Bears began their conference activity this afternoon against downstate rival Southern Colorado at Pueblo. The series between FHS and UNC has swung heavily to the Bears by a 10-1-1 count. The Tigers' last win came in 1966 at Hays, but they came close last season, losing 3-0.

The Bears' offense is led by senior quarterback Russ Boone, tailback Chuck Taibi, the GPAC's second leading rusher, and fullback Gary Eccker. UNC also owns a potent kicking game with Mike Williams doing the booting.

Homecoming at FHS is Oct. 18, and the Tigers host KSC-Pittsburg at 2 p.m. The Gorillas are looking for their first win of the season tonight at Kearney State. They are 0-2-1 this fall.

Dr. G.W. Tomanek

To Parents, Students, Alumni and Friends:

Fort Hays State is extremely pleased to be host to the parents of its students today. We hope that you have had a most pleasant visit.

We are always very happy to have the parents on our campus because we feel that they are vitally interested in Fort Hays State and everything this college offers the students. Many of you are members of the Tiger Parents Club, which was organized two years ago for the purpose of developing stronger ties between this institution and the parents. The primary function of the Club is to assist the parents and students in any way possible.

We are very proud of our program here at Fort Hays State and particularly are we proud of the calibre of our students. Many people who visit our campus are impressed by the student body. We are grateful to all of you for the experiences these young people have had at home before coming to us because in many ways those experiences have molded the splendid attitudes the students display while in college.

We appreciate all the support that you give this college and hope that we will continue to work as partners in helping your sons and daughters prepare themselves to be useful citizens.

Please don't hesitate to share your ideas with us. We feel that input from the parents of our students is of enormous value to us.

G.W. Tomanek — Acting President

Welcome

Tiger Football

Welcome Parents,

We, in the Athletic Department, want to welcome all parents of Fort Hays State students to tonight's game. Our football team is facing one of the top NAIA powers, but we know our players will represent FHS well in the gridiron battle.

Although we recognize all parents tonight, we want to pay special tribute to parents of our athletes. Without their support our athletic program would suffer. Financial aid is essential for our program, but the moral backing athletes and coaches receive from the parents is immeasurable. Without the constant encouragement from their parents, many athletes would fail to do their best.

Every faculty member at FHS invites you to visit our campus at your convenience. We are proud of our college and feel we have something to offer everyone, in particular people in western Kansas. With the addition of our new Gross Memorial Coliseum-Cunningham Hall, many events have been held and are being scheduled that were not possible in the past.

We hope you will find time to take part in many activities on campus. When you return to Hays, stop in the Athletic Department. Our doors are always open.

Offensive Linemen

by Bob Keating
FHS Sports Information

A strong and deep area on Fort Hays State's football team this season is the offensive line, where the Tigers were hit hard by graduation losses but found several prospects who were willing to step in and do the job.

Before the season began, the FHS coaches pointed to the offensive line as a key to the team's progress, and the experience up front on offense will still be a determining factor if the Tigers are to turn their season around. The line received a serious blow in the Tigers' first game when all-conference tackle Scott Soukup suffered a knee injury, and the damaged knee is just now coming around into playing condition.

Scott

If Soukup is healthy for the conference schedule, FHS could own one of the strongest lines in the Great Plains Athletic Conference this season. Most of the members have been picking up experience for at least two years, and the others have received valuable playing time in this season's early action.

The other proven veteran going into this season was guard Steve Thompson, a senior from

Steve Thompson

Geneseo, and he has become one of the team's leaders on offense. Craig Broadbent, a senior from

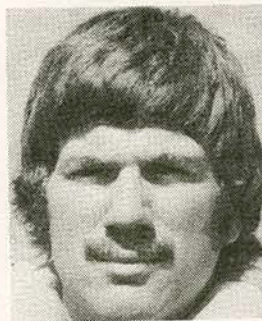

Craig
Broadbent

Corning, won the starting center job in spring drills, and he has continued to improve as the weeks go by.

Two of the questionable areas before the season were the vacant guard and tackle spots, but they have been contested by a veteran group of players. Greg Dutt, a sophomore from Lawrence, and Don Jenkins, a senior from Stockton, have been sharing the guard position, while Carlos Amaro, a senior from Kinsley, was the early starter at tackle.

Greg

Don

Most of the offensive linemen also played on defense in high school, and some were given a look on the defensive side of the line when they joined the Tigers.

Robb
Ross

Almost all of them played at small high schools and won numerous football honors and recognition in various other sports.

Thompson was a football and track letterman at Geneseo and won all-state recognition as a senior. He is in his fourth season on the FHS squad and this is his third year as a starter. The Tiger coaches feel Thompson is a likely candidate for post-season honors.

Soukup, a senior from Morse Bluff, Neb., attended North Bend High School where he was a football and wrestling stand-out. He was the conference and district heavyweight wrestling champion two years, was an all-conference pick in football for two

Assistant Grid Coaches

Countless hours of coaching are needed when preparing a team for an upcoming game and Head Fort Hays State Coach Bill Giles has seven assistants to help get the Tiger gridders ready for each weekend.

In addition to offensive line coach Barry Allen, defensive coordinator Jerry Cullen and defensive line coach Ed McNeil, Giles also has the services of wide receiver coach Lynn Lashbrook, graduate assistants Doug Dallman and Joe Ross and undergraduate assistant Bob Gonzales.

Lashbrook's primary coaching duties involve the receivers. He also scouts FHS opponents on weekends and assists with the Tiger track program. He is a graduate of Wyandotte High School, where he lettered in football and baseball.

Lashbrook graduated from from FHS after lettering four years in football and one in wrestling. Dallman is a graduate of Shawnee Mission East High School, where in his senior year, he was named Lineman of the Year. He is married and his wife's name is Kim.

The main areas Ross assists with are the linebackers and secondary. He is a graduate of Luray High School and Kansas

State University. While at Luray he was all-league in football and basketball, and also lettered in track.

Before coming to FHS, Ross, who also scouts Tiger opponents, was head football coach at Ell-Saline High School. In two years he compiled an overall record of 11-7, including an 8-2 mark his first year. His first year also saw his team win the Eisenhower League championship and advance to the state playoffs. Ross is currently working on his masters degree at FHS.

Gonzales' main duties are helping McNeil with the defensive line. He lettered on last year's FHS football squad. Gonzales transferred to FHS from Garden City Junior College, where he also lettered one year in football. He graduated from Garden City High School, where he was all-league in football and wrestling and also lettered in track. He and his wife Brenda, have a daughter Jennifer, who is two.

Rupp Verifies Athletic Eligibility

by Willie Mannebach
FHS Sports Information

The task of determining eligibility for male athletes in the nine varsity sports at Fort Hays State is one of the major responsibilities of a faculty representative to the Great Plains Athletic Conference.

Dan Rupp, associate professor of economics and business, must verify eligibility for FHS athletes volving transfer students. An athlete enrolling at FHS who withdraws and attends another institution must lay out of competition upon returning to FHS for a period of 18 weeks. But, if the athlete were to graduate from the institution, as in the case of a junior college, he would be immediately eligible. Enrolling in six credit hours is considered to be a term of attendance.

To be eligible, an athlete must have completed 24 hours in the previous two semesters prior to participation. A minimum of 12 credit hours must be taken in the current semester, of which only one hour may be a physical education service course.

Of course, the athlete must be making satisfactory progress toward his degree as part of his academic eligibility.

An athlete sustaining an injury in the first varsity of the season and not expected to see action for the remainder of the season is another case. Such athletes may apply for qualification as a "hardship" case, and, if approved by the NAIA, may be granted an extra year of eligibility. After the initial contest, however, the competition goes on the athlete's record.

Athletes have 10 terms or five academic years to complete four seasons of eligibility.

Rules and other business of the GPAC are discussed and revised each fall in a meeting of member athletic directors. Following this meeting, a meeting of the college presidents is held, making final decisions accepting or rejecting any rule changes proposed by coaches, faculty representatives or conference committees.

No faculty representative meetings have been held in the last three years. "We only have minor revisions annually," said Rupp. "The rules have been established, and the policies can be made by correspondence. A coach who wants a rule change will go through his athletic director."

Eligibility forms completed by Rupp are then sent to Harry B.

Kniseley, of the GPAC, and Elmer Roth, of NAIA District 10, which includes all of Kansas. Roth, Rupp and Allan Grunau of Sterling College make up a District 10 panel involved in enforcing eligibility standards.

Reports of violations are turned in to the district committee for presentation to the national eligibility committee. The committee is comprised of five members, one of which is Bill Toalson, professor of mathematics at FHS. Their decision is returned to the national NAIA office, where the executive secretary informs the institution involved of the results.

"Institutions and their athletic directors now are more aware of the rules, and therefore there have been fewer problems than has historically been the case," said Rupp.

in accordance with two certification agencies — the GPAC, and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Rules that at times conflict and overlap with one another make the task a difficult one. Generally, the more stringent rule, whether it be conference or national, will apply.

Perhaps the most difficult cases facing Rupp are those in-

SID Is Expert PR Professional

By Phil Langan

They call him and her everything - tub thumper, drum beater, image maker. You name it. But when you get down to the basics, and in most cases, the sports information director at the nation's colleges and universities is an expert public relations professional. And within the scope of that title you'll find him involved in layout and design, writing, editing, photography, advertising, radio and television, promotion, film work and a few hundred other things.

It's a 60-70 hour a week job for nine months of the year and high pressure all the way.

The image of this sports information director and his future are the main concerns of CoSIDA, College Sports Information Directors of America, an 18-year-old organization which now numbers 625 members.

Started as an independent group after being a part of the American College Public Relations Association for years, CoSIDA concentrated on building its membership and providing a thorough, informative annual workshop for its members until 1971 when it started to expand operations.

CoSIDA has begun to educate athletic directors and college presidents as to just how valuable the SID is, something coaches and athletes have known for years. It has started regional workshops for new members of the profession, in addition to the annual concave, and now sponsors academic All-America teams in football, basketball and baseball, which are receiving plenty of national attention. It has started a graduate school scholarship program for students who spent their undergraduate days as student assistants in the SID's office.

A total of 22 committees covering everything from "The Future of CoSIDA" to ethics and constitutional amendments, and from surveys to upgrading the profession are now in operation.

CoSIDA also sponsors brochure and game program contests for its members in some 18 categories for both large and small colleges, and offers its members an energetic and informative 20-page monthly publication called the CoSIDA Digest.

However, the two most important steps for CoSIDA have been taken within the past three months. The first move was the formation of a joint committee of athletic directors and sports information directors aimed at improving the relationship between the A.D. and the S.I.D. and developing a closer involvement between the two national organizations NACDA (National Association of College Directors of Athletics) and CoSIDA.

The second step was a resolution passed unanimously at the recent annual workshop held in Houston in which CoSIDA resolved not to cooperate with annual and weekly publications that use gambling related advertisements. This step has been applauded by such organizations as the NFL and NBA and by "The Sporting News". It is CoSIDA's first effort in the on-going collegiate battle against gambling.

Many of the publications in question have already pledged full support of the resolution, and

Cullen Has Fun, Likes To Win

By Bob Keating
FHS Sports Information

Middle linebackers are a rare breed. They must be individualists, tuning their minds and bodies for their punishing weekend jobs. They must also be team leaders, serving as the nucleus of a team's defense. But most of all, middle linebackers are determined winners.

Fort Hays State's Chris Cullen plays the role beautifully. He has been an important cog in the Tigers' defense for three seasons, and motivates his teammates by his determination to do his job every day in practice and every Saturday in the game.

Cullen, a senior from Pueblo, Colo., has been determined not to let anything interfere with the sport he enjoys. At 5-10, 210 pounds, he is considered small for a college linebacker, but he lifts weights year round to keep up his strength, and he works hard on his speed and quickness. He has been timed in 4.7 seconds in the 40-yard dash and can bench press 425 pounds, the most for anyone on the team.

A fractured ankle prior to the season opener last fall could have kept him out for the year, but

Cullen was back in the lineup by mid-season and averaged 10 tackles a game. The season was a long and frustrating one for him as the Tigers lost one close game after another, but the last game was a satisfying win over Southern Colorado in his hometown. "We just had to win that game," he points out.

Football has been a big part of Cullen's life since he was in grade school and got into an organized program. He found his position at linebacker in high school and has been developing there ever since. "I started playing football because my six brothers played it," he explains. "I had to play or get beat up at home."

One of his brothers is Jerry

Cullen, the Tigers' defensive coordinator, and he has had a big influence on his younger brother's playing career. After high school Chris went to Chadron State more this year. You can never be satisfied with yourself."

The FHS coaches are satisfied with the effort Cullen puts into his game, and feel he is a leader by just being on the team. "Chris is a tremendous football player," notes Giles. "It's good to have him around. He plays when he's hurting and gives 100 per cent all the time."

"We feel he's one of the best linebackers in the conference," Giles adds. "He's a leader and helps hold our defense together. He reads the play very well, gets to the ball and is an outstanding hitter."

Cullen hopes to use his leadership experience from football long after he's through playing. He is majoring in sociology and wants to work with juvenile delinquents and do research about juvenile problems after he graduates. Later he would like to try coaching as a means of working with kids.

But football is on his mind right now as he prepares for each Saturday. "I enjoy playing more now than I used to," Cullen says. "You have to learn to win, but you also need to have fun. I try my best and enjoy playing the game."

Men's Athletic Board

Fort Hays State's Athletic Board for men is a policy-making body responsible for the very existence of athletics on an intercollegiate level.

Purpose of the board includes promoting and encouraging participation in varsity programs

Jim

while keeping within the general education policy at FHS.

The board schedules and manages contests, collects receipts and handles disbursements. Membership is nominated by the staff, subject to approval of the college president.

While the board makes policy decisions, the athletic director must make the administrative decisions within the framework of the Great Plains Athletic Conference and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Members of the board include: James Kellerman, registrar and director of admissions, chairman; Walter Keating, vice-president for administration and finance, secretary; Dr. Gerald Tomanek, acting president; Keith Faulkner, director of data processing; Bill Toalson, professor of mathematics; Dan Rupp, associate professor of economics and business and Cade Suran, athletic director.

ENMU Is Young School

Eastern New Mexico University, the youngest four-year state supported university in the state, is currently in its 41st year of educational service since 1934.

Located on the western edge of Portales, the campus now occupies more than 400 acres with a physical plant valued at more than $23 million. Because of its relatively young age, the campus is modern both in exterior design and interior educational facilities.

Eastern is a multi-purpose university and grants baccalaureate degrees with a choice of 98 major areas of study in the following colleges: the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, the College of Business, the College of Fine Arts, and the College of Education and Technology.

Fourteen two-year associate degrees are also offered and pre-professional programs are available in nine areas.

Graduate degree programs are offered in the College of Graduate Studies culminating in the master of arts, master of business administration, master of business education, master of music education, master of science, and educational specialist.

With a student body of 4,000 and a faculty of 200, the relationship between the teacher and student is described as one of mutual respect and understanding for the world of academic and personal achievements.

The student body is representative of every county in New Mexico, most of the United States, and several foreign countries allowing an informal exchange of national ideas and customs.

Eastern has been the NAIA-SIDA All-Sports champion for two consecutive years. Since the NAIA-SIDA competition began, Eastern has been the only institution to be in the top four every year. In 1969-70 the Pack finished second, with a third place finish the following year. The 1971-72 season gave ENMU a fourth place finish, while the 1972-73 competition saw the Hounds being defeated for the award by one-half point.

Eastern has been national champions in basketball, outdoor track, and cross country (two consecutive years). The Greyhounds have also had national contenders in golf, swimming, and gymnastics. This season the Hounds are aiming for national championships in football, cross country, and outdoor track.

Dr. Gail Shannon is serving as acting president of Eastern and served as vice president for Academic Affairs since 1960. He received a bachelor's degree from Kansas State Teachers College in Emporia with master's and doctorate degrees from Ohio State University.

Intramural Program Offers Variety

By Duane DaPron
FHS Sports Information

With the beginning of classes each fall at Fort Hays State, some men students ready themselves for competition in various varsity sports. But, for many others, the start of classes signifies the beginning of the intramural season.

The intramural program at FHS includes a wide range of sports. Team sports include basketball, bowling, softball, swimming, track and field, touch football, volleyball, and wrestling. For those interested in individual and dual sports, they can pick from events such as badminton, golf, handball, racquet ball, horseshoes, table tennis, tennis, diving and archery. In other words, there is something for almost everyone.

All men students, including graduate students, who have enrolled for seven or more hours of school work at FHS and who have paid the full fees are eligible to compete in intramural sports. Men faculty members regularly employed at FHS are also eligible.

However, it is important to remember that varsity team members, whether A or B squad members, are ineligible to compete in his particular sport but may compete in all other sports providing his sport season is finished. Intramural eligibility rules are listed in the "Men's Intramural Sports Handbook."

Besides being good exercise, intramurals are very rewarding. Division trophies are given in basketball, football, softball and volleyball. There is an all-school champion in basketball, football, softball, swimming, track and field, volleyball and wrestling. Last year, Sigma Phi Epsilon was the All-School Champion in all sports. But, their title could be challenged strongly this year by the increase in teams from dorms and the independents.

Entering his seventh year as director of men's intramurals is Wayne J. McConnell. According to McConnell, "The men's intramural program at FHS is a very extensive one. We have so many different sports to offer that many overlap. In fact it is not uncommon for one participant to be competing in two or three sports at the same time."

When asked about how the program was operated McConnell replied, "It is important to note that the intramural program is very student-centered. The governing body of the program, the Intramural Council, consists entirely of students that have either been elected or appointed to the position. The Council has made up all the intramural rules and listens to and decides all protests. In fact, in the six years I've been here, I haven't overruled one of the Council's decisions, although I am the final authority in all matters concerning men's intramurals."

The growing interest in sports around the country has contributed to making intramural athletics a big program at FHS. In fact, McConnell estimates that last year over 50 per cent of the males attending FHS participated in at least one intramural sport. Almost 2,400 men were involved in team sports alone last year. With the increase in participants in horseshoes and tennis this fall, last year's total could be surpassed.

Art Show Slated

By JOHN THORNS
Dept. of Art Chairman

The slides are in, the juror is reviewing and the first step of the Kansas First National Exhibition of Small Paintings, Drawings, and Prints is on the way. This is the stage of a new exhibition experience available to students on campus and the community in general.

The Department of Art will co-sponsor the first national competitive show scheduled for Oct. 15 through Nov. 20, in the Gallery of Davis Hall. Following the closing date, the show will re-open at the Dane G. Hansen Memorial Museum of Logan, which is a co-sponsor of the exhibition. Closing date of the Logan location is Dec. 18, when the work will be returned to the artists.

The national show is made possible through a grant from the Kansas Arts Commission, the endorsement of the Hays Arts Council and the National Endowment of the Arts. The grant will cover some of the expense involved but it is more significant that the department is working closely with local and state agencies in the advancement of the Arts in western Kansas.

The preliminary judging is being done at the present time, and 89 artists from across the country have submitted 170 slides of their work for review by the jury. The judge for the exhibition is Lewis W. Story, Associate Director of the Denver Art Museum. Upon his review and selection of the work, artists will be notified of the work to be shown. After the work is hung, the judge will be on campus to review the work and select the award winners. Hopefully awards up to $2,000 will be given.

A preview opening is being scheduled for the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 15 from 7 to 9 p.m. at which time the public has a chance to see the show for the first time. The Hays Arts Council will assist at the opening.

The purpose of the exhibition is to enable students, artists and patrons of the Arts to be aware of what is going on in the visual arts across the country.

Tiger Badges On Sale

With the 1975 athletic season beginning for Fort Hays State, now is the time to pick up your Tiger badge.

The badges are perfect for wear at all FHS athletic activities as well as at school or around the community. No sewing is needed. With a special sticky substance on the back of each patch, you can transfer your badge from one article of clothing to another with no trouble.

Tiger badges are on sale now for 25 cents each at the Memorial Union Trading Post Bookstore, Hays Chamber of Commerce, Wilson Real Estate, FHS Endowment Association, FHS Placement Service, and will be available at concession stands during all Fort Hays State games this year.

Homecoming Set For Oct. 17-18

Homecoming at Fort Hays State College is an event-packed, fun-filled weekend that offers something for everyone not only on the campus but in the city of Hays as well.

The fun begins Friday, Oct. 17, with an all-day Oktoberfest, in which communities in Ellis County set up booths and beer gardens in City Park celebrating their cultural heritage. Polka bands and German-style foods bring thousands of people to Hays. That evening, the college kicks off its Homecoming with a snake dance by students that winds its way through campus and around the various residence halls stopping at the Oktoberfest grounds where a pep rally is staged and the Homecoming Queen is robbed.

Saturday morning, Oct. 18, the largest parade in western Kansas, stretching for more than a mile with floats, guests, campus royalty, and more than a score of marching bands, kicks off Homecoming Day at FHS.

After the parade, a buffalo barbecue will be held in the west driveway of the Memorial Union and everyone is invited. Pittsburg State will be the Homecoming foe of the FHS Tigers in Lewis Field Stadium at 2 p.m.

Evening entertainment features nationally-known entertainers in concert at Gross Memorial Coliseum. Past Homecoming entertainers have included Henry Mancini and his orchestra, singer Mac Davis, the Earl Scruggs Review, the Burgandy Street Singers and the Lettermen.

This year's concert, featuring musician Barry Manilow and comedian David Brenner, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday in Gross Coliseum.

Homecoming means reunion for FHS graduates. Reunions for this year will be the classes of '25, '35, '45, '55 and '65. Class members will be honored at the Alumni Banquet Saturday evening where Alumni Honor Awards will be presented to three outstanding FHS alumni.

Other reunions will be held for the Nursing Association and Lewis Field Pioneers. Induction into the Half Century Club will also be held for graduates who have been away from the campus for 50 years.

The planning committee is made up of interested citizens county-wide. The standing committee selects a chairman to head next year's Oktoberfest.

CoSIDA Promotes Sports

CoSIDA's membership is made-up mainly of male full-time sports information directors, some athletic directors and an increasing number of women, some of whom handle the entire sports public relations program at their respective schools such as Villanova and Illinois State, while others handle only public relations for women's athletics, such as Indiana, Minnesota, and Kansas State.

A topic of many panels at the last four national CoSIDA workshops, and one area of activity which has given the SID a chance to show off his many talents, is ticket promotion. With the increasing number of professional sports, the great interest in lifetime sports and the tight budgets of American families, many college athletic departments have developed intricate and creative ticket sales programs, plus the equally creative merchandising of such items as blankets, brochures, lamps, pennants, mugs, and mini-football.

The S.I.D. plays a prominent role in the entire operation.

Michigan's promotion conscious athletic director Don Canham, the subject of a Sports Illustrated article which spotlighted his work in this area, doesn't mince words when describing his feelings about SID Will Perry. "The sports information director is now the second or third most important man in our athletic department."

Yet the basic job of the SID is providing information on his school's athletic program and developing feature stories for the news hungry communications media.

"The sports information director is vital to our athletic program," Alabama football coach and athletic director Paul "Bear" Bryant remarked recently. "He is our link to the public and I rely on this advice all the time."

Some administrators like Bryant know the score. Others don't and that is CoSIDA's task in the years ahead; educating their college administrators to the scope and value of activities involving the SID. In addition, of course, to becoming a positive force in that vital phase of American life called college athletics.

Coop Geology Class

By Ronda Haskins
FHS Sports Information

Last summer, the geology departments of Fort Hays State, Wichita State University and Kansas State University combined to form a cooperative geology workshop.

Dr. Mike Nelson, chairman of the Geology Department at FHS, said, "To the best of my knowledge, this is the only cooperative class with two other state-supported institutions. We're very pleased with the results and plan to continue it."

Forty-five students from the three colleges attended the five-week workshop that began the first of June. The workshop was based in Beulah, Colo., a small town about 25 miles southwest of Pueblo.

The workshop is designed for juniors, seniors or graduates in geology and provides them with valuable field experience that helps prepare them as professional geologists.

According to Dr. Nelson, "The workshop is practical application. It lets the students observe in the field what they've learned in class."

Students attending the workshop participated in five major projects. They worked in small groups, making geologic maps from aerial photographs, studying geologic hazards such as landslides and soil erosion, and observing various aspects and methods of mining and land use.

Another important part of the workshop was conducted on weekends, when field trips were made. Camping out and back-packing were necessary for expeditions to the Spanish Peaks, Canyonlands and Arches national parks and Climax Molybdenum and Telluride mines.

"This gave the students a chance to study firsthand the classic examples of geology that they've heard about," Dr. Nelson

MAP-MAKING—Geologic and topographic maps are made by using a plane table and an alidade, or transit. By sighting through the alidade at a numbered pole, the draftsman can transcribe distance and elevation.

said. "They looked at landforms caused by volcanic eruptions and stream erosion and both modern and antique mining."

The Beulah workshop was started by KSU 19 years ago. Four years ago WSU began attending and last summer was the first year for FHS to participate.

Faculty for the workshop include three instructors and three graduate assistants, one from each school. "We call this a co-directorship," said Dr. Nelson. "It works very well, one instructor is in charge of each project and the others help. Individual attention is very important in these classes, and that's why this workshop is limited in size. We'll never have over 45 students enrolled at one time."

"This workshop attracts geologists from all over the country," he continued. "But as more of our own students enroll, fewer out-of-state students will be accepted."

Cooperation in the workshop has reaped other benefits. "Due to our interaction and cooperation with K-State and WSU, we're going to begin an exchange program of guest lecturers," Dr. Nelson said.

"FHS can now take advantage of the more sophisticated equipment and expertise at KSU and WSU and we know they'll help us with our geology-related problems. And all this is an outgrowth of the workshop experience."

According to Dr. Nelson, most of the students were satisfied with the workshop and believed it to be well worth their time and money for career preparation.

years and won all-district honors his senior year. He was one of four FHS players named to the All-GPAC team last season.

Broadbent played three years at Centralia High School and two seasons at Highland Junior College before joining the Tigers last fall. He was an all-conference basketball player in high school. According to Offensive Line

Carlos Amaro

Coach Barry Allen, Broadbent made "tremendous improvement" from last season when he saw limited action to this fall when he claimed the starting center job.

Jenkins helped Stockton to the state 2A championship in 1971, and he was an all-conference pick two years as a linebacker and one year as a fullback. He also lettered four years in wrestling and placed second and third in the state his final two years.

Dutt played his high school ball at Lawrence where he was an all-state choice as an offensive guard and defensive tackle. He was also chosen All-Sunflower League on offense. Dutt attended Kansas University last fall, but rejoined the Tigers last spring and is fighting to nail down a starting position.

Another player missing last season but returning for his final year in 1975 is Amaro, and he too has battled his way into the lineup. Amaro played two years at Pratt Junior College and joined the Tigers in 1973. He was a football and wrestling stand-out at Kinsley High School.

Ross was an all-state performer at defensive tackle his senior year at Atwood, while gaining all-league laurels on both offense and defense. He has played in a reserve role his first two years with the Tigers, but could round out his career with two fine seasons.

Matteson has also been valuable to the Tigers in his back-up role and on the junior varsity squad the last two seasons. He came to FHS after lettering in football, basketball and track at Eastern Heights High School, and is seeing increased playing time this fall.

Carlson is in his second year on the squad and may be one of the offensive linemen the Tigers look to in the future. He attended Perkins County High School in Nebraska where he was a football and track letterman. He was an all-state and all-conference selection in football as a senior.

Experience and potential seem

to be two key words when describing the players who fill the positions on Fort Hays State's offensive line this season. It is a good mixture, and while many of them will be gone next year, the foundation is there on which to rebuild a solid front wall.

Tigerette Volleyball

Women's volleyball at Fort Hays State is in full swing this weekend. Friday night the Tigerettes played Washburn University and Northwestern Oklahoma State College. This afternoon, the Tigers hosted Bethany College's A and B teams. Continuing through November, the season looks to be a good one for the Tigers. Since state play-offs began in 1972, the Tigers have

"I'm very impressed with the team as a whole," said Coach Orvene Johnson. "Each player has been working hard to change bad habits and improve overall skills."

"We should be strong in serving and overhead passing," she continued. "Our freshmen are good, capable servers and they can place the serve anywhere they want. If we can just get the first serve, we can pretty well control the game."

"However, we need more work in receiving serves and jumping and timing spikes," she said.

Tiger Club

The purpose of the Tiger Club in Hays is to promote and financially aid Fort Hays State's Athletic Department with its varsity sports programs. Organized in the fall of 1969, the Tiger Club has grown in membership from the original 10 persons to approximately 200 men at the present time.

Under the leadership of its first president, J. D. Williams and succeeding presidents Bill Rymph, Homer Schwarz, Harley Rhoads, Howard Teater and Dr. Larry Good, the club has grown steadily and accelerated its program for the benefit of the Athletic Department.

Women's Tennis

Women's tennis at Fort Hays State is about halfway through its season. Today Tigerettes hosted their first and only home meet this year, against Bethany College's A and B teams.

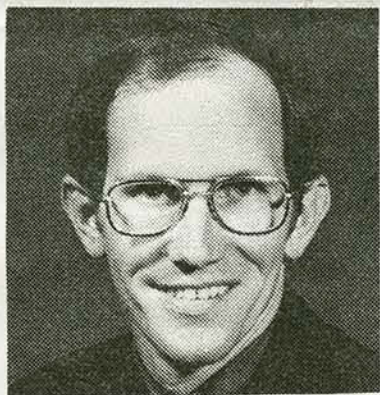

So far, the young team has had a disappointing season. The record stands at 0-7. Further complications were added when the number two player left the team and the number four player sustained a foot injury.

In spite of these problems, Coach Cindy Bross says the team is steadily improving in both singles and doubles play. "We've improved a lot since our first match with KU and WSU," she said. "We're having some really good practices."

"In competition," she continued, "we're running our opponents more and mixing up our shots and more drops and lobs. We still need more work on serving."

"Confidence," Miss Bross said, "is what the team needs now, and a win would help gain this confidence."

Next action for the Tigerettes will be at 1 p.m. Oct. 7 in Garden City, against Garden City Junior College's B team.
